Hotel Haritha Plaza, Begumpet, Hyderabad
September 4, 2014
8:30 – 17:25

The World Bank and the Governments of Andhra Pradesh and Telangana will organize an interactive ideation workshop on Open Data to bring together key open data stakeholders including government officials, development practitioners, health, education, agriculture, retail, and other subject matter experts, entrepreneurs, ICT firms and academic and research institutions to discuss open data solutions for rural development and inclusive growth in Andhra Pradesh and Telangana. The workshop will showcase the uses of Open Data in India and in the rest of the world, with a focus on the development issues addressed in the World Bank Andhra Pradesh and Telangana Rural Inclusive Growth Project, and help outline the necessary steps to use Open Data effectively to deliver development benefits.

The workshop will consist of two parts. The first part will focus on knowledge sharing of global and Indian good practices, successful solutions and lessons learned; collecting feedback from participants and discussing priorities for the open data initiative in the rural space. There will be presentations by Government officials and the World Bank experts presenting examples from around the world, India and within the two states.

The afternoon workshop session will focus on identifying and elaborating high priority challenges and brainstorming on possible open data enabled solutions based on successful use cases.
