

Frederick Krimgold

Dr. Krimgold is Director of the Disaster Reduction Program (DRR) of the Advanced Research Institute of Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University. He has served as the Associate Dean for Research and Public Service of the College of Architecture and Urban Studies. From 1977 to 1983, Dr. Krimgold was Program Director in the Engineering Directorate of the National Science Foundation. From 1975 to 1977, he was a Research Associate in the Department of Civil Engineering of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Dr. Krimgold has served as President of the Architectural Research Centers Consortium, as a member of the Building Research Board of the National Research Council of the National Academy of Sciences, and as a member of the Advisory Board of the Federal Emergency Management Agency. He has served as a member of the Consultative Council of the National Institute of Building Sciences and the Endowment Committee of the Earthquake Engineering Research institute.

Dr. Krimgold has worked as a consultant on disaster risk management for the World Bank, the Asian Development Bank, USAID, the Swedish International Development Authority, the Swiss Agency for Development Cooperation, the Government of Maharashtra, India, the US Federal Emergency Management Agency, the US Army Corps of Engineers, the Department of Home land Security and the Virginia Department of Emergency Management.

Dr. Krimgold received his undergraduate training at Yale University and his Doctorate in Building Science from the Royal Institute of Technology in Stockholm.