

First READ Global Conference «Developing a Vision for Assessment Systems»
September 30 – October 2, 2009
Moscow, Russia

Role of CICED:
Russian expert capacity for education development

Russian Capacity Building

Building national capacity for participation of the Russian education community in national and international development aid programs in education

“Scope of Work”

CICED

Master degree programs

Setting up a system for training experts in education quality assessment and education policy

Establishing two master degree programs in partnership with Russian and international institutions:

- Measuring learning achievements of school students
- Evaluation of education systems quality

Target group: professionals from Russia and developing countries

Small grants program

Establishing professional contacts between researchers from Russia and developing countries in education quality assessment

Small grants program (up to $10000) is aimed at supporting research on school education quality assessment

Participants: combined teams of Russian researchers and researchers from developing countries

Learning by Doing

Conducting applied research and developing modern methods in education quality assessment

Toolkit for monitoring academic and subject-specific competencies of primary school students

In-depth analysis of international comparative studies (PIRLS, PISA)

Toolkit to monitor information and communication technology (ICT) competency of secondary school students

Learning activities

Building Russian expert capacity through dissemination of advanced knowledge in education quality assessment, education policy and development aid

Conferences

Seminars

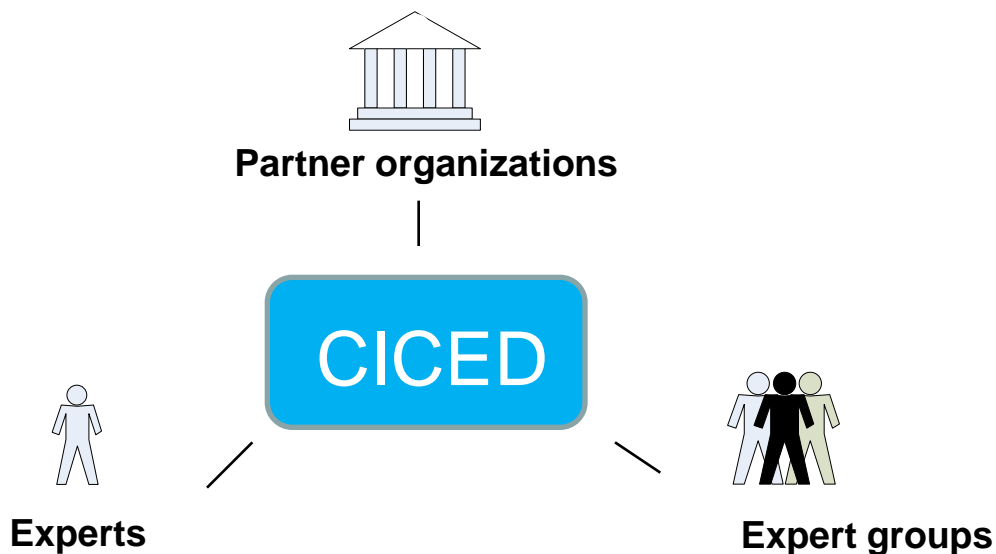

Study tours

Training courses

CICED network

Center for International Cooperation in Education Development is a network organization that unites Russian and international experts in education quality assessment, education policy and development aid in education

CICED

Thank you for your attention!

The Center team works for you

CICED

www.ciced.org