

Main Takeaways

Charlotte Nan Jiang

Manager of Worldwide Governance
Indicators

Takeaway #1:

Strong governance data is underpinned by the dedicated work of data producers and the good practices they apply

Takeaway #2:

Perception-based data is often misunderstood, but it captures real experiences and helps understand how institutions function in practice

Takeaway #3:

Perception-based data has limits—and gains strength when complemented by other objective data grounded in reality